ARTS @ HOLY TRINITY

Sunday, March 21, 2021, 4 p.m.

Stasera Duo

Flutist Stephanie Jutt's elegant artistry and passionate intellect inspire musicians and audiences around the world. Her groundbreaking performances of new music, transcriptions, and traditional repertoire have made her a model for flutists everywhere. She received first prize at the Concert Artist Guild and Pro Musicis International Soloist competitions, and was a finalist in the International Walter W. Naumburg Competition.

His artistry, dazzling technical command, and sensitivity brings Stanislav ("Stas") Venglevski, a native of the Republic of Moldova, increasing acclaim as a virtuoso of the bayan (Russian accordion). A two-time first prize winner of Bayan competition in the Republic of Moldova, Stas graduated from the Russian Academy of Music in Moscow, where he received his Masters Degree in Music under famed Russian bayanist Friedrich Lips.

The duo will play a combination of Eastern European and Latin American music in this pre-recorded concert, created especially for Holy Trinity.

We invite you to meet the artists in a special Happy Hour Q&A gathering via Zoom - with door prize drawings - before the concert premiere, 3:15-3:45 p.m. Advance registration is required. For details and to register, please visit artsholytrinity.org.

Community outreach is an important and unique feature of Arts @ Holy Trinity.

On March 22, Ms. Jutt will present a virtual masterclass to flute students at Kent State University.

We thank Leek Pipe Organ Company for serving as the Outreach Underwriter for the concert season.

This pre-recorded concert made specifically for Holy Trinity will premiere on March 21 at 4 p.m.

NOTE: This concert will be available to stream on-demand for one week following the premiere on March 21.

Happy Anniversary!

Yep. On the 15th of March, we will celebrate the first anniversary of our first livestream worship broadcast. There were still a few people in the house that morning for a single service at 9:30am. But by the next Sunday, it was just a small collection of worship leaders. Worship went totally virtual.

Pastor David

Over the next week or so, there were additional online opportunities taking the place of our “normal” programming. Morning Devotions appeared at 8:00am Monday-Friday... a Facebook Live gathering that continues to this day. Prayers for All People began on Tuesday afternoon. DLM shifted from a shopping event to a delivery service so that our client families could still be cared for. A variety of studies started happening online, too, as well as a spiritual wellness check-in every Friday. There was and still is a bedtime story and prayer time...now every Sunday night at 7:00pm...while ministry teams, committees, and the Congregation Council discovered a Zoom way of meeting. A lot of folks...both staff and volunteers...put (and continue to invest) a great deal of time and effort and creativity into pivoting Holy Trinity into a whole new reality for ministry.

And here we are...one year in and still learning, growing, trying new things, and reaching well beyond our walls by digital means so that we might continue to bring Jesus to all people through love and the Word of God. What a grand opportunity we have been given. Who could have imagined it?

It was my privilege to speak recently with a newcomer to our community. He happens to live in Maine, but attends worship online each week, offers prayer concerns, prays for us here in Akron, and even regularly sends a check in order to help support what’s going on here. Even remotely, he has found a community where faith is active in love, and he has been blessed by it. Thanks be to God.

We try our best to peer into the future and imagine what might be coming next. How soon will the Covid restrictions be lifted? When will we be able to safely gather again...praying and speaking and singing together? What will normal look like even after the doors are open wide? How will we continue to minister with and to folks from all across the country? How has our congregation been forever altered by the pandemic experience, and what will that mean for us? I wish I had answers.

What I do have is confidence. Together we will get our priorities sorted out and our plans made so that the mission can faithfully continue. Even more important, however, is the context for that sorting and planning: the future that God already has in store for us...one that is visible by means of cross and resurrection where redemption and grace and joy are the consequence of divine and unrelenting love.

You know the prayer: Lord God, you have called your servants to ventures of which we cannot see the ending, by paths as yet untrodden, through perils unknown. Give us faith to go out with good courage, not knowing where we go, but only that your hand is leading us and your love supporting us; through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Amen. That works...no matter what comes next. †

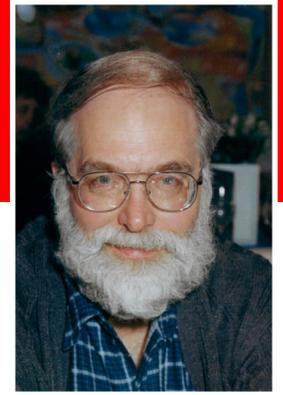

Stations of the Cross: Pandemic Hope

How does the pandemic reveal Jesus' Stations of the Cross in a unique light? Mary Button, an ELCA liturgical artist, explores this question in her art series "Stations of the Cross: Pandemic Hope." Each station lifts up images and stories of hope, resiliency, and relationship during the COVID-19 pandemic. Featuring the dedicated work of healthcare, sanitation, and mortuary workers, each station reflects how Jesus' journey to the cross is witnessed amid this unique global crisis.

Two congregations of the Akron/Wooster conference will be providing an installation of Button's series outside their facilities. Jerusalem Lutheran Church (9282 Acme Road, Seville) and St. Luke's Lutheran Church (2121 Sixth Street, Cuyahoga Falls) invite you to walk the stations of the cross throughout Holy Week. This artistic series will be available March 29-April 3 along their parking lot and exterior walkways for prayerful contemplation.

Please contact Pastor Tina Crog (née Heise) at pastortinaheise@gmail.com with questions. +

Ernie Liska Memorial Scholarship

Counselors and teachers in the Akron Public School system have already begun helping students apply for the 2021 Ernie Liska Memorial Scholarship sponsored by Holy Trinity Lutheran Church. This scholarship provides financial assistance to qualified students who plan to earn a college degree, university degree, or become certified in a vocational/building trade and who aspire to utilize their education to serve their community. Finalists for the $1,000 scholarship will be announced in May following a review of applications by the selection committee.

Your support for this important scholarship program is critical in helping deserving students as they launch their careers. Contributions may be made to the Ernie Liska Memorial Scholarship fund at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church.

The Secrets of Generosity

6 Genuine Lessons for Success

by Briallyn Smith | Published February 22, 2017 on makeuseof.com

Try the conscious decision to practice generosity every day. These six lessons on generosity will help you learn about yourself, the people around you, and the world.

We often think of generosity as a personality trait: you're either generous, or you're not.

The truth is that generosity is a practice. It is something that you can cultivate in your life over time. Like any habit. Even better, practicing generosity offers a wealth of opportunities for learning about yourself, the people around you, and the world.

There isn't a one-size-fits-all approach to practicing generosity that I can recommend. It may take some experimenting to find the strategies and styles that best fit your personality and lifestyle.

But what I can tell you is that practicing generosity can have a large impact on how you view your life and the choices you make every day. The lessons you learn from giving are valuable. They can make life so much better, not only for the individuals you set out to help but also for you!

Lesson 1: Generosity Isn't Just About Money

Most people's first association with generosity is making monetary donations to a cause. This strategy is certainly an effective one -- charitable organizations rely on funds to accomplish many of their goals.

However, there are so many other ways to practice generosity in your life. For example, consider ways that you can be generous with your time, your possessions, your empathy, and your talents.

Maybe you don't have much money to spare this month, but you can spend an afternoon helping someone paint their new home. Maybe you are on a strict budget, but can lend your car to a neighbor while theirs is in the shop. Or maybe you can offer to watch someone's children for a few hours so that they have a chance to get some errands done.

It's easy to think that you can't be generous without having extra cash on hand, but free acts of generosity can sometimes be even more meaningful and valuable to an individual or organization in need.

Lesson 2: Generosity Makes You Happier and Healthier

There is an entire body of research that explores the relationship between generosity and happiness. Many studies clearly link the two, showing that volunteering can increase self-esteem, increase one's sense of purpose, and decrease symptoms of depression. Physically, generosity can lead to decreases in stress, chronic pain intensity, and mortality while promoting higher levels of functioning.

Other studies suggest that when a giver sees a clear link between their actions and a positive outcome for someone in need, positive hormones like oxytocin, serotonin, endorphins, and dopamine may be released. Generosity can even extend your life expectancy.

When you're able to give part of yourself in a selfless manner, the potential windfall can be significant, and it all comes relatively easily.

The act of giving can also serve as a reminder to be thankful for what you have. Gratitude is a key concept in happiness research, and recognizing opportunities to be grateful for things, experiences, and people can make a big difference in your emotional state.

Lesson 3: Generosity Is Easier Than You Think

Another common myth about being generous is that it is going to be a difficult process for the giver. It's easy to imagine situations where you are guilted into donating more money than you can afford, or being forced to give up a prized heirloom to benefit someone else.

Try looking at generosity as something that you get to do instead of something that you should do. Practicing generosity can teach you that some of the best ways to give are also fun and enjoyable!

Lesson 4: Generosity Is a Mindful Process

Mindfulness is all about bringing your full attention to the present moment, and immersing yourself in the experience.

Practicing generosity in your everyday life quickly teaches you how important it is to be mindful of your actions and opportunities. The more aware you are in each situation, the more likely you will recognize an opportunity to give.

Taking some time to give in a thoughtful way can maximize the other benefits of generosity. Give to organizations, individuals, and causes that you are personally connected. This can be more rewarding than those you don't know anything about.

Lesson 5: Generosity Builds Meaningful Connections

Nothing brings people together like generosity. It is the simplest way to bond with people who care about the same things you do, even if you start out as strangers. Research has shown that giving improves cooperation and helps people view each other more positively.

Everyday generosity also has a huge potential for deepening close friendships. It is hard to beat relationships built on a foundation of mutual generosity and the trust that comes from knowing the other person has your back.

Once you become used to giving, it might be hard to receive from others. But it's important to accept their generosity as well -- relationships aren't balanced or healthy if one person is always the giver and the other is always the receiver. Both parties in a relationship should be able to experience the benefits of giving!

Lesson 6: Generosity Has Ripple Effects

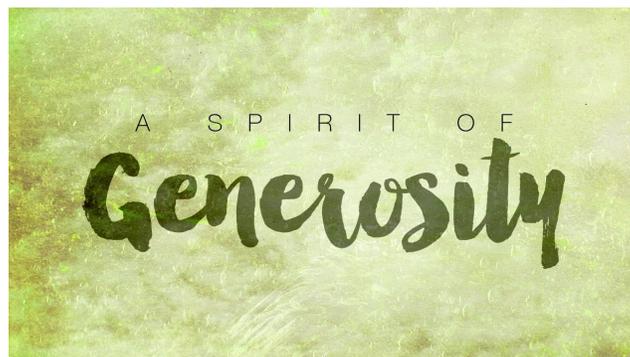

One of the best lessons that can be learned from generosity is that its effects reach farther than you could ever intend. A Harvard study found that a single person acting in a generous way influences observers to behave generously later. In turn, those who observe the observers are also more likely to be generous.

So a single act of generosity on your part can have a significant impact on more people than just your intended recipient. The ripple effects can reach dozens or even hundreds of people, many of whom you may never know about.

Generosity as a Way of Life

Making the conscious decision to practice generosity every day can feel daunting at first. But once you begin, the benefits of your choices can make it difficult to stop.

There are some amazing opportunities out there that allow you to give back in important and tangible ways. And you can accomplish these tasks from the comfort of your home. What do you have to lose? †

This is a great mantra to live by! Being generous and showing generosity can be easy, fun and can make a tremendous impact! And when there's more than one of you, it's twice the generosity!

Here are some ways to show your generosity with Holy Trinity's ministries:

Lent at Home in Community is an intergenerational resource of six sessions using the Psalms from the six Sundays of Lent. These Psalm passages are used for sessions titled Seeing, Tasting, Hearing, Touching, Smelling, and Giving. It is written for use at home. We will gather virtually to read the Psalm, have conversation, do an activity that responds to the passage, pray together, and have a blessing for the week ahead.

God is the Creator of our senses – sight, taste, sound, touch, smell, and service. We will wonder together and give thanks together for God's grace in this season of Lent as we ready our hearts to remember Christ's sacrifice and anticipate the celebration of Christ's resurrection. We will explore ways in which we can deepen our relationship with God, each other, and the greater community to be the hands and feet of Jesus in the world. †

- March 7 Hearing (Psalm 19: 1-4)
- March 14 Touching (Psalm 107: 1-3)
- March 21 Smelling (Psalm 51: 1-2)
- March 28 Giving (Psalm 31: 14-16)

The Bible features numerous encounters with angels who show up on an array of missions, from wielding a sword (Genesis 3:24), to rescuing a child (Genesis 22:11-12), to a mass choir singing, “Glory to God in the highest” (Luke 2:14).

Angels are not a major focus of Holy Scripture, nor are they ever mentioned in our Christian creeds. Yet they show up frequently and at pivotal moments in both Old and New Testaments. Church Reformer Martin Luther is quoted as saying, “If you picture the Bible to be a mighty tree and every word a little branch, I have shaken every one of these branches because I wanted to know what it was and what it meant.”

During Winter 2021, the Rev. Christa von Zychlin presents the four-part study “Journeys with angels” in which we will shake those biblical branches, watch for angels and listen for God’s calls to action.

On March 20th we will continue with part three of this study from Gather – March 2021, Loneliness, abandonment and holy comfort. †

New Custom-Built Carts for DLM!

Check it out ... DLM has two brand new, custom-built, HUGE carts on wheels! They are given in honor of Norm and Sally Richenbacher by their children, Wayne, Keith and Beth, for their love of Jesus Christ and of Holy Trinity. They are the perfect size to more easily move the 100+ food boxes and personal care kits that are prepared twice each month! A big thanks goes to Bruce Mansour and Gary Radanof for building these carts.

ABOVE: Darlene Weaver from Faith Lutheran Church helps fill non-perishable food boxes.

Volunteers Make It Happen ... Times Two!

Twice each month, volunteers are needed to assemble boxes and label them for delivery. They are then separated and categorized based on the size of the families (i.e. 1-2 members, 3-5 members and 6+ members). Next comes the unloading, unpacking and sorting of more than 5,000 pounds of food ... canned, dry and boxed goods, paper products, dairy, meat and fresh produce. Next comes packing everything into the assembled boxes (adding extra items as needed), preparing them for delivery, and loading them into vehicles. Lastly, is the personal delivery to families' homes.

Many hands go into making this ministry run smoothly. And more hands—volunteers—are always needed! If you would like to get involved, please contact DLM coordinator Darlene Katz at danderson@holyltrinityakron.org. †

To-Go Meals for Robinson CLC Families

Since the beginning of the 2020-2021 school year, Holy Trinity has partnered with the Robinson Family Resource Center (FRC) to prepare and distribute to-go meals to Robinson CLC students and their families. The number of meals served each month has increased ... for January nearly 100 meals were distributed. That tells you this outreach is helping to meet families' needs.

The menus have varied each month, but meals typically include a meat and vegetable and starch side dishes. And in December, Door Dash was used to help deliver all the meals.

With students returning to the school building this month, our partnership with Robinson CLC and the FRC will take on a greater role. If you would like to get involved, please contact Sandy DeLuca at (330) 703-4870. †

Concert Benefits Young Organ Scholars

The Akron Chapter of the American Guild of Organists (AGO) strives to encourage young musicians to develop their skill and love for the pipe organ, and to nurture their ability to capably lead God's people in worship. These bright young players express great enthusiasm for their studies. The Akron AGO offers scholarships through an audition process. This year we have more applicants than funds. Please help us build our scholarship fund so that we never have to turn away a qualified applicant. Our goal is to raise $2,000.00 this quarter.

Daniel Colaner

Join us for a live-streamed organ concert by our two 2019-2020 organ scholarship recipients - Daniel Colaner and Nik Stackpole - on Sunday, March 7 at 3 p.m. While this event is free, we encourage you to make a donation toward our scholarship fund in honor of these fine young presenters. Donation details, along with a copy of the program, may be found at: <https://akronago.org/>. Thank you for your support! +
