Holy Week

It is the most holy time on the Christian calendar. And you are invited to immerse yourself in Holy Week worship (Palm/Passion Sunday, April 10, through Easter Sunday, April 17) as we come face to face with the passion and victory at the heart of our salvation.

Unlike the past two years, you are invited to join us for worship in-person (for most liturgies), or online. The livestream is accessible on our website (www.holytrinityakron.org/live), on Facebook Live, and on our YouTube channel. For those participating online, bulletins for all these services will be available for download from our website as we get closer to those days, as well as being accessible via our MidWeek Word emailing. They will also be mailed to those who do not have computer access or who otherwise request it.

We encourage you not only to join us, but to invite friends and neighbors. We have good news to share and celebrate together! +

A Ministry of At-One-Ment

...in Christ, God was reconciling the world to himself, not counting their trespasses against them and entrusting the message of reconciliation to us. So we are ambassadors for Christ, since God is making his appeal through us.

Pastor David

The Church is facing a challenge going forward as it seeks to define the nature of ministry in a Covid-endemic world. Of course, that challenge has been around a long time, at least for the last century and a half: How do we receive and enact the living Word in an age that is increasingly self-defined and inwardly focused. The experience of the past two years...lockdowns, political turmoil, social unrest, and governmental interventions...has accelerated the shift. The resultant trauma of this period points us toward real change and the possibility of growth, not just a return to what once was.

Psychologists are learning that one of the “victims” of this time of tumult has been the notion of community. We have learned that it is possible to find community in ways that are not dependent upon physical proximity. And while tuning in to worship online or sharing a Bible study may not be as complete an experience as an in-person gathering, it has nonetheless opened us up to the idea that it is possible to learn and grow and share even when we are separated by time and distance. For that reason alone, we have continued to put great emphasis on our online ministries and (with the help of some new technology) hybrid gatherings that combine in-person and online experiences pretty well. The recent presentation to the Congregation Council by Rev. Mitch Phillips from the synod staff and the last meeting of the Men’s Bible Study proved that this could happen effectively. These are good things.

But the recovery of community must also be hastened by a more complete understanding of the purpose of the church in the first place. St. Paul is a help to us in that regard. On a recent Sunday morning, the second reading from 2 Corinthians included the quote above. It is a powerful reminder of what we are called to be and to do...that our ministry is a participation in the God-given and God-driven task of reconciliation.

When William Tyndale began his English translation of the Bible in the mid-1520s, he struggled to find just the right word for the Latin reconciliato. Borrowing from a medieval English synonym, he fashioned a new word...at-one-ment...a word meant to capture the idea that God is about restoring the essential harmony of our relationships with God and with one another. This is God’s work in Christ Jesus, and consequently, it is our work, too.

Over the centuries since Tyndale, atonement has become more associated with a kind of quid pro quo satisfaction of debt. So, in its simplest terms, we say that Christ died for our sins. But at-one-ment is a more complex idea than paying off an angry God. It is a matter of reclaiming what God has always intended...our mutual abiding in loving relationship with God and with one another.

What a powerful way of looking to repair the damage done to community over the past two years (and longer)! We are created to be, intended to be, in love with and for each other and God. The methods don’t really matter. Online. In-person. A little bit of both. The goal does matter...that we find ourselves rejoicing with our neighbors at the astounding grace of a God who would go to the cross to bring us home. Sharing the Good News of that God is our ministry. †

We're Singing Again!

What a joy it is to sing together again in worship! As we build up our collective voice, John Wesley's Directions for Singing (1761) bear repeating -- not as rules to follow, but as further inspiration for us who have longed for this moment.

1. Learn these tunes before you learn any others, afterwards learn as many as you please.
2. Sing them exactly as they are printed here, without altering or mending them at all; and if you have learned to sing them otherwise, unlearn it as soon as you can.
3. Sing all – see that you join the congregation as frequently as you can. Let not a slight degree of weakness or weariness hinder you. If it is a cross to you, take it up and you will find a blessing.
4. Sing lustily – and with good courage. Beware of singing as if you were half-dead or half-asleep; but lift up your voice with strength. Be no more afraid of your voice now, nor more ashamed of its being heard, than when you sang the songs of Satan.
5. Sing modestly – do not bawl so as to be heard above or distinct from the rest of the congregation that you may not destroy the harmony, but strive to unite your voices together so as to make one melodious sound.
6. Sing in time – whatever time is sung, be sure to keep with it. Do not run before and do not stay behind it; but attend closely to the leading voices and move therewith as exactly as you can and take care not to sing too slow. This drawling way naturally steals on all who are lazy; and it is high time to drive it out from among us and sing all our tunes just as quick as we did at first.
7. Sing spiritually – have an eye to God in every word you sing. Aim at pleasing Him more than yourself, or any other creature. In order to attend strictly to the sense of what you sing, and see that your heart is not carried away with the sound, but offered to God continually; so shall your singing be such as the Lord will approve here, and reward when he cometh in the clouds of heaven.

Collectively, Wesley's principles foster a deeper understanding of the priesthood of all believers. We take courage as a body of priests. Not laying our confidence in the sound of our voices, but in knowing as priests our words of praise glorify God through the mediation of Christ.†

Gathering for Sunday Brunch

Information and resources to prepare for Lent

It was the first in-person meal held in many months, and it was good to gather with everyone! In addition to the delicious meal and wonderful fellowship, it was a time of learning and faith development as we prepared for the season of Lent. Director of Faith Formation Rachel Núñez shared information on how we can set aside time to focus on Christ's life, ministry, sacrifice and resurrection. A wide variety of resources were made available for us to use as we embark on a season of repentance and reflection. †

Lead by Director of Faith Formation Rachel Núñez, the group of 20 women explored meanings of Palm Sunday, Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, Holy Saturday, and Easter Sunday, and they learned simple practices of prayer, reading, light & shadow, reflection, and singing to better connect with others as we all engage the key themes of the Lenten season. †

Inna Faliks Concert

What a stunning performance by Ukrainian-born American pianist Inna Faliks! Her concert was a musical biography that began with her childhood in the Ukrainian city of Odessa, to immigrating and growing up in Chicago, to traveling the globe as a world-class pianist, and finally to Paris where a rekindled relationship with a childhood friend sparked a lasting romance. From start to finish, this concert was truly outstanding!

What's the Difference? Can you find the one difference between these two photos? Face masks are now optional during worship! +

Council Responds to Issues with Congregational Meeting

Council has received a number of questions concerning problems with the “Zoom” portion of the January Congregational Meeting. They included:

- Difficulty getting into the meeting
- Not being able to see or hear the proceedings
- Was there a quorum
- Was a parliamentarian appointed
- The Budget was presented without questions
- Could not ask questions or participate in discussion
- Some people were never able to vote
- No Team presentations, new business, or open forum

Council recognizes these were problems, as some of us were also on the “Zoom” connection and experienced the same issues. After considerable discussion, Council came to the following conclusions.

This was primarily due to technical issues because new volunteers were running the meeting equipment. Even though our technicians had gone over the process with Bob Foutty twice before the meeting, they realized they were in over their heads, and when it was turned over from the technician at the console to the technician on the floor, there were transfer problems, too. In the confusion, they also forgot to press the record button. In addition, our new President apologized and said he could have done better, but he was also new to the dual process and new to the office of President. There was a quorum. However, it was based on the number of people voting, so there may have been attendees who were not counted.

Please realize this was our first meeting without Bob Foutty in attendance, and our technicians were doing the best they could under the circumstances. Be assured that there will be additional training for our volunteer technicians, and there are plans for more people to be trained. In the future, we will make sure that any hybrid meetings will be recorded so they will be available for review. By the time our next Congregational Meeting rolls around, we are sure everything will be running more smoothly. Thank you for your patience. †
